Different Paths

*We started off on the same road,
Filled with similar hopes and expectations
Dreams were being realized,
While childhood was left behind,
And different interests led to different paths.*

*Our road had split into alternate routes
And we stood at the fork where we had to choose
We didn't want to look back, but rush forward
Fulfilling those dreams of yesterday,
And shaping our futures on different paths.*

*But as we near the faithful day
When we walk down our common road one last time,
We start to realize we will leave each other,
Without leaving each other behind
But leaving to pursue our dreams on different paths.*

*So we need to say our good-byes
And embark on our separate journeys
But we mustn't forget our common road
When we look back from our points of success
Onto the worn trails of our different paths.*

Mary Matthews

Thomas DeFilipi

Paths lead us to many different places. Some can lead us to a definite ending while others can take us around in circles. As we choose different paths in our lives, teachers appear to inform, advise, and assist us in our exploration. Mr. DeFilipi is one of these guides escorting us along the path of history while leading us into the future.

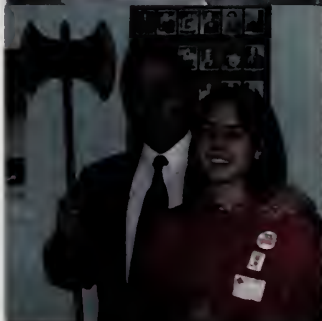

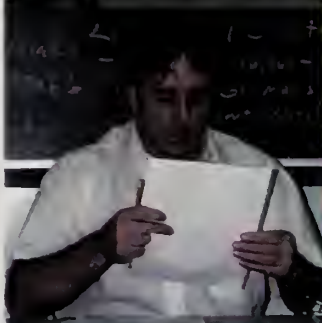

Mr. DeFilipi has dedicated twenty-five years of his life to education, fourteen of those years have been with us at Enfield High School. Among numerous contributions to our school, Mr. D was the football coach for nine years, advisor for the chess club and author of the new fight song.

The facts speak for themselves, but the things we love about him most are his unique characteristics and passion for life. How many teachers will ever forget Mr. DeFilipi singing Irish folk songs in the faculty lounge? How many students will ever forget his cryptic class notes? No one. When we think of Enfield High we will always remember the patriot in room 204.

Mr. DeFilipi has been the perfect combination of the guide on the side and the sage on the stage. We thank you for your care, concern, and encouragement and we dedicate the 1998 ECHO to you.

Sincerely,

Stacy Hardy

The End

The journey that seemed to be endless, is finally drawing to a close. We have risen and fallen through a world of survival. We never would have thought the time would go so fast. Where did it all go?

What did we do with it?

These questions are obsolete now, as we are almost there. We are almost to the end.

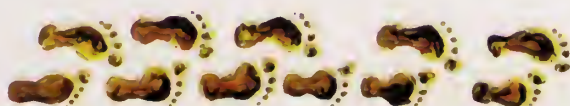

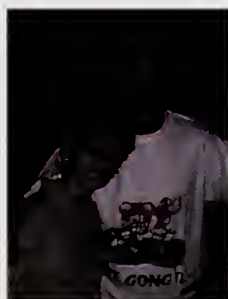

by Kevin Sampl

Sometimes the road is a little scary...

Halloween at EHS is always a special day.

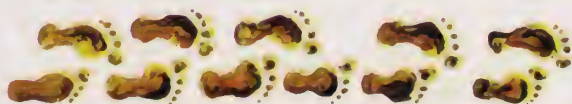

From Mr. Gallucci's Batman costume to Ms.

DuBeau in a witch's hat handing out apples, nothing is normal. This year students even had a chance to dress up. Ms.

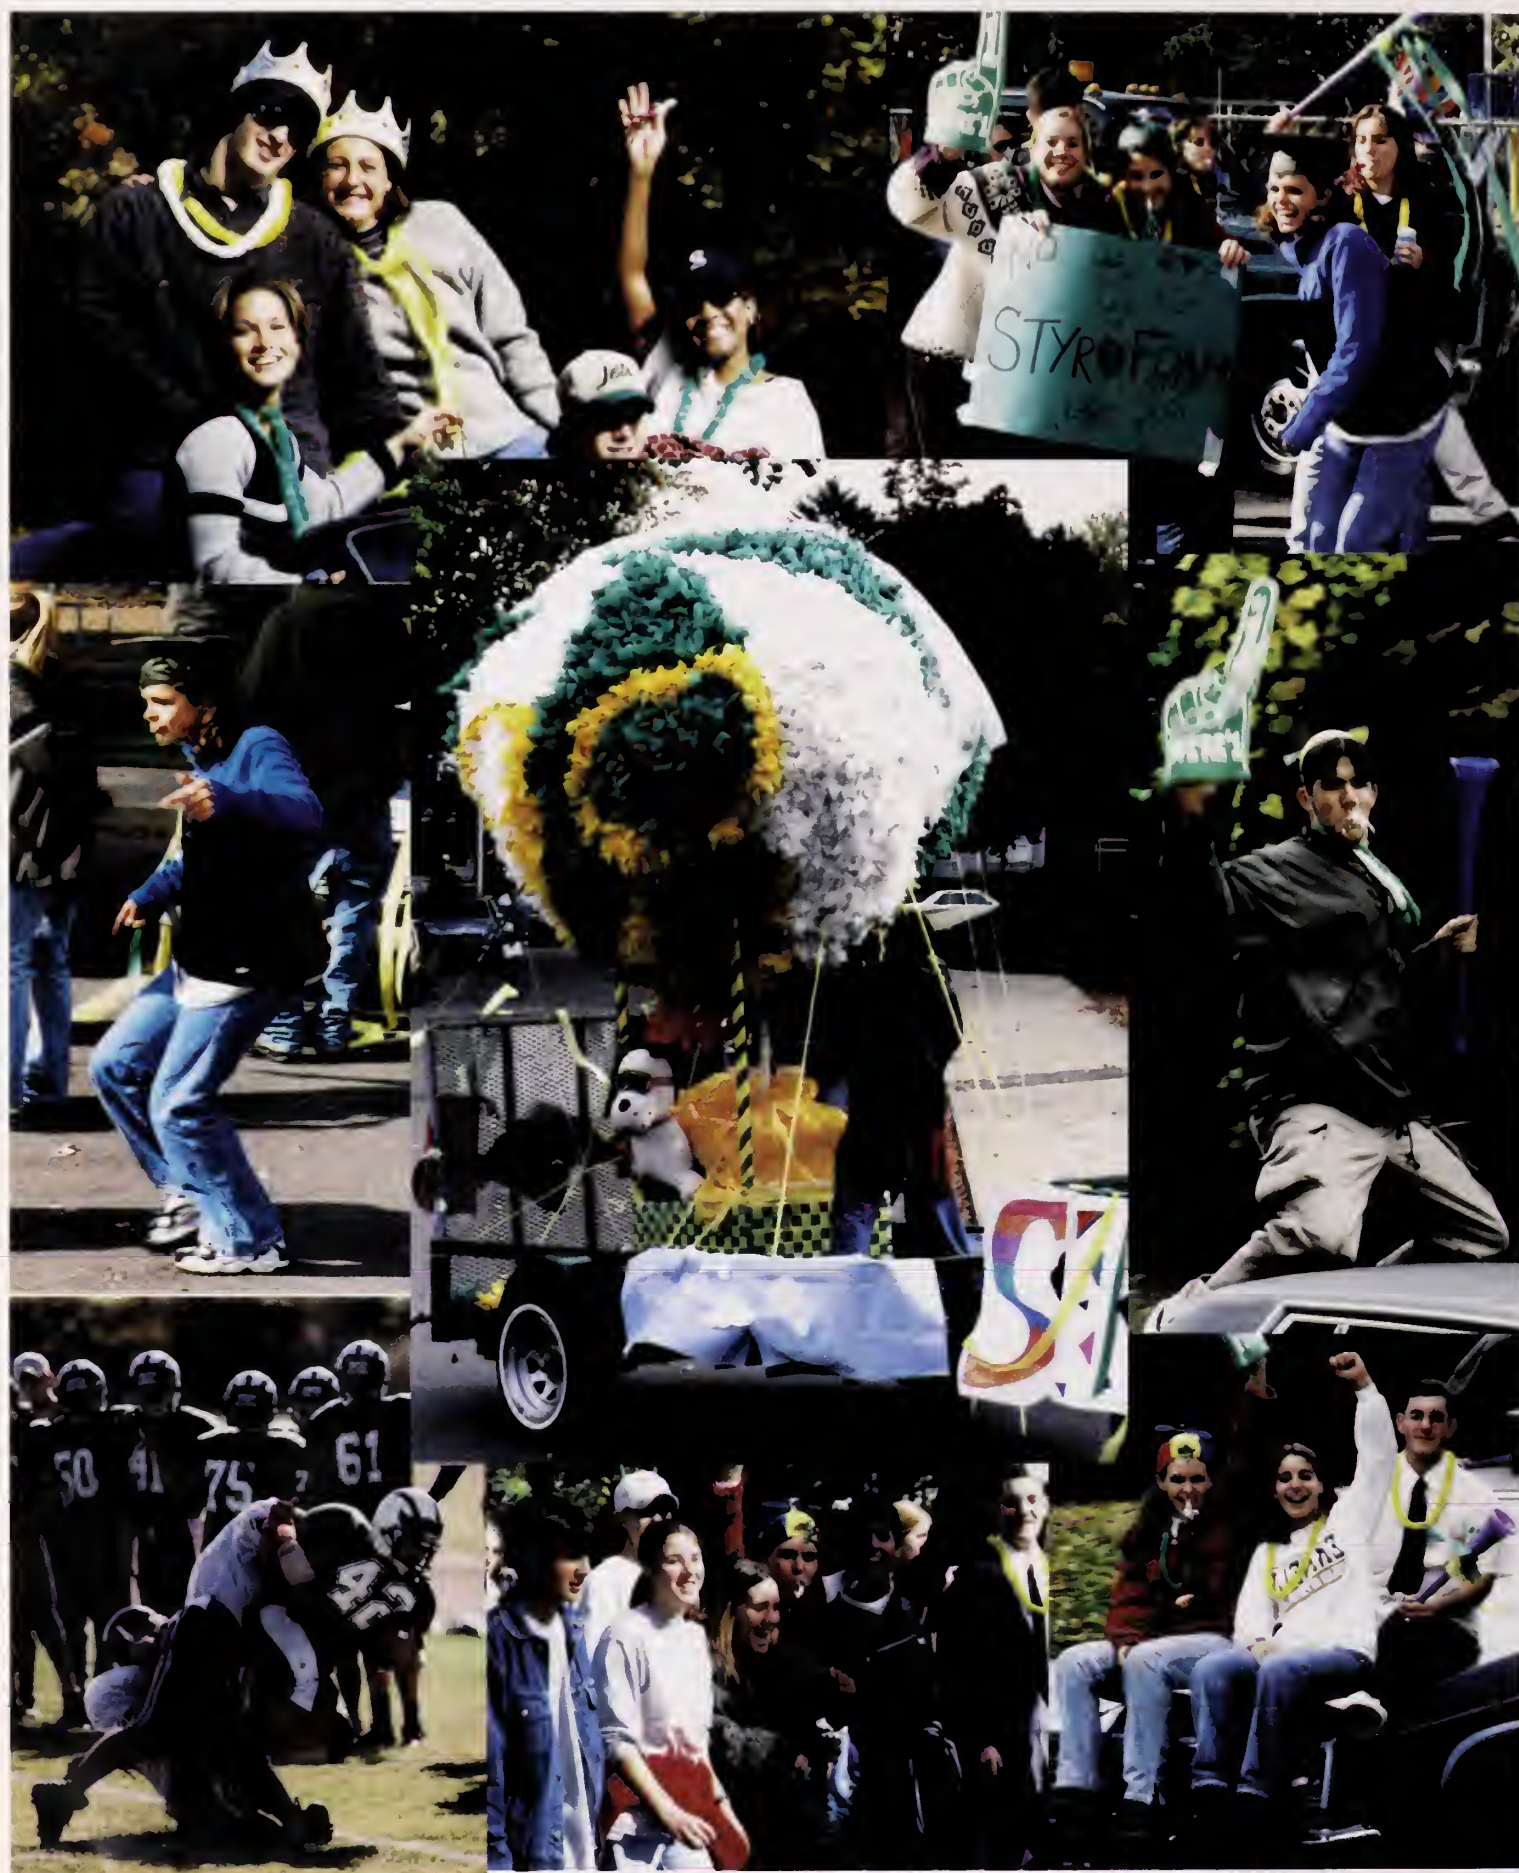

Roberts and Ms. Mirabello took their classes to Salem. What better place to spend Halloween—even if the alledged witches were executed in Danvers—not Salem?

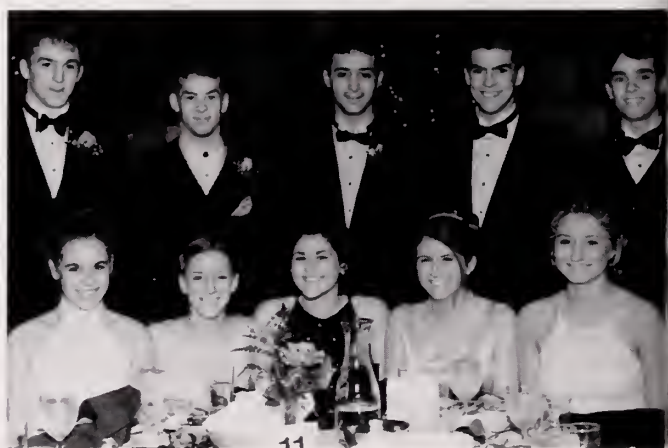

Homecoming October 18, 1997

1997: Class of '98 Junior Prom

Once a year we take time out to dress up and go out. This year we made some special memories. We danced. We ate. And, some of us stayed up to watch the sun rise. These are the times that make us a family. Few events are as special in a high school career. For some of the guys it was the first (and maybe the last) time they wore a tux. For the girls dressing up is a month long project. They picked dresses, compared notes, fixed hair, put on make-up and hoped for good weather—almost like a wedding. The evening was all we expected and more.

Who would attempt life's journey without a good pair of shoes? Well, I know a few nature lovers, and this guy who had a farm... Well, okay, maybe some folks would just as soon be bare foot. But, when the road is rocky, when pavement burns with the summer sun or freezes in the winter, nothing is as welcome as a good pair of shoes, sneakers or boots. What we put on our feet is as important as who we are. The hiking boots aren't going to travel the same path as the sandals. We all have our own paths to follow and our own shoes to get us there.

ur Guides: The 1997/98 EHS Faculty and Staff

When we look back on our time at Enfield High School, we probably won't remember the homework we did. We may not remember what we had for lunch or what our bus number was. It is very unlikely that we'll recall the names or authors of our text books or all that much of what was in them. Some of us will remember the view, a project, a field trip or the train going past. But all of us will remember our teachers. The adults who entered our lives while we were here were guides along our path. They influenced and changed us in ways we may never fully appreciate. A story, a lesson, a compliment or even a song might plant an idea that will help shape who we are in our future. The most interesting, the most caring, the most popular and the toughest all play a part. The ones we could talk to and the ones we had to hide from all cared in their own way and all changed our lives and helped us learn.

Finding Their Own Way: The Friends We Leave Behind

For the Class of '98 the years at Enfield High School are ending. For our friends in the Class of 2001 they are just beginning. The Class of 2000 is finding its way while our friends in the Class of '99 are making plans for their senior year. No one can ever expect what high school will bring. Freshmen come in with a plan while Seniors leave wondering where the time went. Throughout the experience, different as each experience is, some things stay the same. Throughout all of it we are finding our way along the path to our own unique future. Through the ups and downs, we all grow and become the future.

Here we come... 2001

We are the class of 2001! Soon we'll be running for student council, class officers, joining clubs and going out for sports. We are the future. We are prepared. With backpacks and books, microchips and virtual reality, we are the first of the new century. We will fill the halls of EHS with laughter after the 20th century is history.

The road twists and turns. The road is never easy. The road is long. When we graduate the road will be in the 21st century—no debate about it. We are 2001! And we've only just begun.

iving On The Road Less Traveled

Enfield High School means something different to everyone who enters. For some students it is about books and tests, labs and reports. For others EHS is about brisk autumn afternoons on the athletic field or summers perfecting a fast pitch. Some students sing, play in the band or march to a different drummer. Whether EHS has meant art, sports, music, academics or trips to a foreign land, for all of us it has been a leg of a journey we will always be on. Though thousands have come before us and perhaps even our children will come here someday, each step we take from here will take the memories and lessons of EHS a little further down a new road. For all of us, EHS means a unique experience.

Activities

It is hard not to be active at EHS. There is such a variety of clubs, organizations and societies that there is virtually something for everyone. During the 1997/98 school year these are some of the activities we took part in. Add to this the endless field trips organized by teachers and classes including local, overnight and foreign adventures, and the sum is a very special experience.

ports, Spirit and Finding Our Way

Enfield High School is proud of its history of championship athletic teams and sports programs. Whether weightlifting to stay in shape or competing for an athletic scholarship, EHS students take sports seriously because sports do so much more than win trophies for the school. Sports build character. Sports teach us how to be team players and help us find our potential. When academic assignments are done and the requirements are met, our teams are there to challenge us in a different way. Finding our path in life is what EHS is all about. Sometimes that path is a football or soccer field, a basketball or volleyball court, a track or a pool. Whether you choose to participate in a sport or just listen to the fight song on Friday mornings and wish your friends good luck, sports are a part of life at Enfield High that help shape who we are and what our paths will be.
